

Central Asia develops energy storage projects

Overview

What is Uzbekistan's First Energy Storage Project?

Installed with Sungrow's cutting-edge liquid-cooled ESS PowerTitan 2.0, this facility marks Uzbekistan's first energy storage project and stands as the largest of its kind in Central Asia. The project will play a pivotal role in driving the region's energy transition forward and setting a sustainable precedent.

Can energy storage solve transboundary water and energy conflict in Central Asia?

A solution for transboundary water and energy conflict in Central Asia is proposed. Benefits of energy storage beyond the energy sector are shown. Long duration energy storage is key for high shares of solar PV and wind energy in the region. An open-access, integrated water and energy system model of Central Asia is developed.

How has Central Asia impacted China's Energy Security Strategy?

China's energy security strategy has also greatly benefited from its investments in Central Asia. The China-Central Asia Gas Pipeline has significantly reduced China's reliance on maritime energy imports, which are vulnerable to geopolitical disruptions, such as those that could arise in the South China Sea or the Strait of Malacca.

How can China and Central Asia improve energy cooperation?

To maximize the potential of energy cooperation while mitigating risks, policymakers in both China and Central Asia should prioritize joint planning, capacity building, and technology transfer. Diversifying energy sources and strengthening regional cooperation can enhance energy security and resilience.
