Overview

What is an uninterruptible power system (UPS)?

Uninterruptible power system (UPS) (1) An electrical system designed to provide instant, transient-free backup power during power failure or fault. Some UPSs also filter and/or regulate utility power (line conditioning). (2) A Device whose sole purpose is to save your equipment, your data and your job. User replaceable.

Why are uninterruptible power supplies important?

Abstract: Businesses today invest large sums of money in their IT infrastructure, as well as the power required to keep it functioning. Uninterruptible power supplies (UPS) are an extremely important part of the electrical infrastructure where high levels of power quality and reliability are required.

Why do you need an ups?

In situations where short-time power fluctuations or disturbed voltage occurs, an UPS provides constant power to keep the important loads running. During extended power failures, an UPS provides backup power to keep the systems running long enough so that they can be gracefully powered down. 18.1. Introduction.

Do you need an ups?

Recommendations for improved reliability In traditional power designs, you may have one UPS supporting your servers, switches and storage devices. In this type of environment, you are prone to having to shut down your equipment during a power failure, UPS maintenance or UPS replacement.
