Overview

What is a bifacial solar panel?

A bifacial solar panel is a modern solar technology that captures sunlight on both the front and back sides of the panel. While traditional panels absorb light only from one side, bifacial panels take advantage of reflected light from surfaces like rooftops, concrete, or the ground to generate extra power.

Which bifacial solar panels are best?

If you're searching for bifacial solar panels for sale that offer high performance and real value, the HQST 100W is a strong contender. It uses advanced bifacial tech to capture sunlight from both sides, giving you up to 15% more energy—making it one of the most efficient 100W portable solar panels available today.

Are bifacial solar panels cost-effective?

When it's properly used, a bifacial panel proves to be cost-effective — for example, a 480W bifacial panel with 30% production bonus from the rear side is going to produce more energy than two 300W panels. In these circumstances a bifacial solar panel price is going to be less than the price of two panels and it will also occupy less space.

How much power does a bifacial solar panel get?

Usually, it gives you up to 30% of the front side's production. For example, a 400 Watt bifacial solar panel gets a 130 Watt bonus if the conditions are good. Since the backside of the bifacial panel is made to work with diffused light, it performs well in low light conditions, such as cloudy weather, fall and winter days.
